

Russia's War In Ukraine

By: Derrek Wilder & Michael Valenzuela

BACKGROUND HISTORY OF THE UKRAINE

Loves
History

Ukraine's history is characterized by its position as a cultural and strategic crossroads, evolving from the 9th century Kyivan Rus state to a fragmented land, ruled by foreign powers, including Poland, Lithuania, and Russia. Following a brief independence from 1917 to 1920.

Ukraine voted overwhelmingly for independence in 1991. Some key events were the orange revolution in 2004 and the Maidan revolution in 2014, which ousted a pro-kremlin government.

Russia annexed Crimea in 2014 and supported armed separatists in Eastern Ukraine. In February 2022, Russia launched a full-scale invasion on Ukraine, resulting in a large-scale war.

Putin's Goals

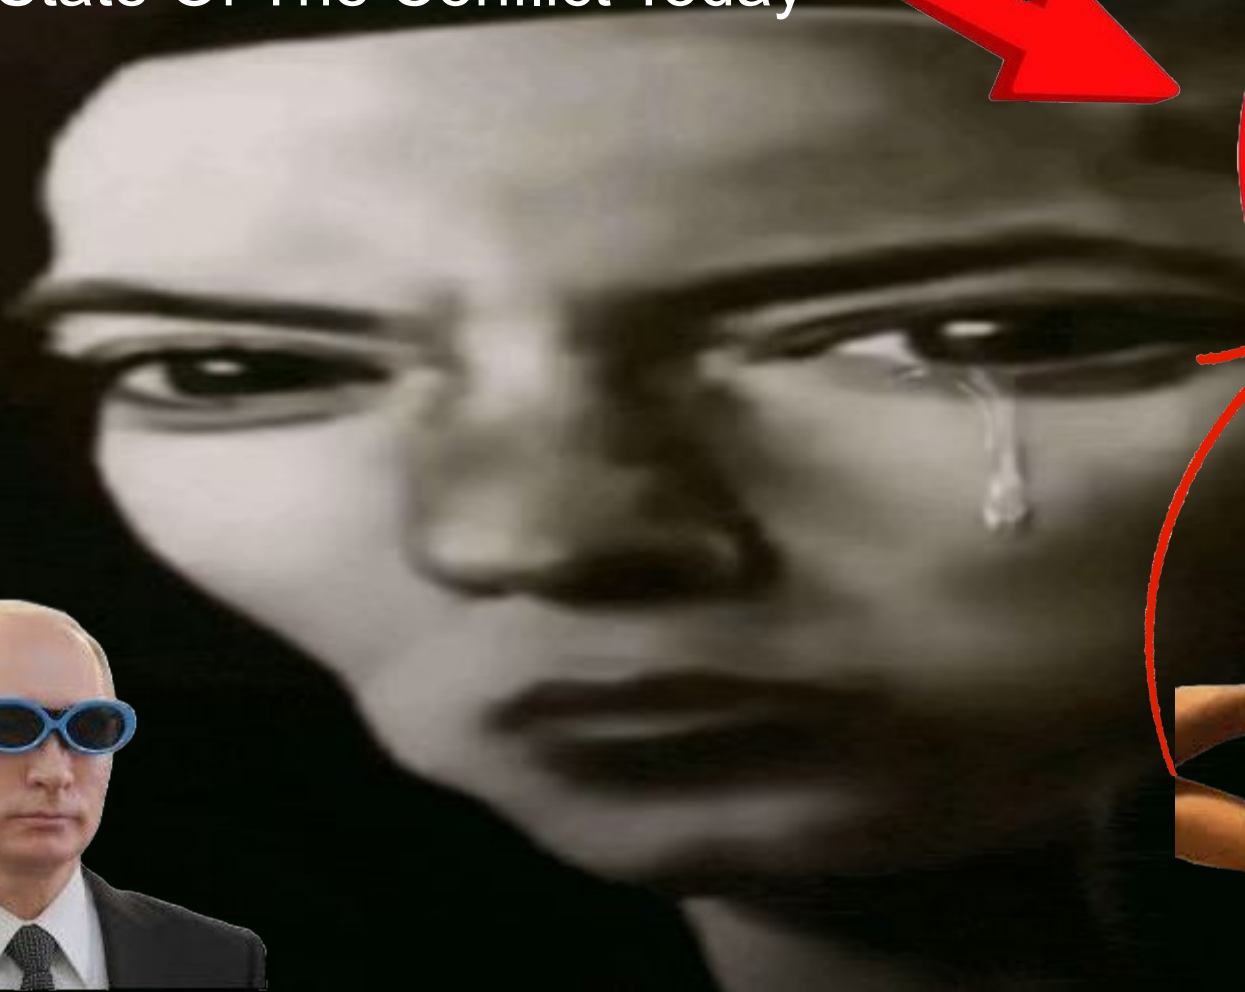

Putins Goal's

Vladimir Putin's primary goals in the war against Ukraine are to ensure Ukraine's neutrality, prevent its integration into NATO, and secure international recognition of Russian occupied territories.

He aims to bring Ukraine back to Russia's sphere of influence, "demilitarize" it, and replace the current government to stop the spread of Western influence on Russia's Borders.

In the February 2022 Invasion Announcement, Putin Baselessly claimed that Russia was acting in self-defense against a potential NATO attack and to stop a genocide of Russian speakers in Ukraine.

The State Of The Conflict Today

As of late April 2026, the war in Ukraine is characterized by a grinding, attritional conflict with heavy casualties on both sides and continued, though slow, territorial shifts. While Russia has expanded its control in parts of eastern Ukraine over the past few years, its gains remain limited and slow. As of early 2026, Russia controls approximately 20% of Ukraine. Russia continues to launch long-range missile and drone strikes against Ukrainian cities and infrastructure. Ukraine has responded with its own long-range strike campaign targeting Russian oil infrastructure and military assets.

The State of the Conflict Today

